

Module 1 : Introduction

Welcome to the Expert4x hedged grid trading course. Grid Trading has taken off in the last few months and it is one of the few new trading techniques around. There are many techniques using the concepts of grid trading so what you will see in this course is not the one and only way of applying the hedged grid trading concepts.

As an introduction please read the marketing information on grid trading available on this website or at this link

GRID SYSTEM.

In general, hedged grid trading works very well in a lazy, wavy sideways or slowly trending market. In a strongly trending market the objective of this system is to get out at breakeven as quickly as possible or find another currency.

The main advantages of the system are:-

- it does not require stops (except when profitable)
- it does not require much of supervision (especially if large grid sizes are used).
- It doesn't matter which way the price moves as long as it moves (you cash in no matter which way the price moves).

.The disadvantages are:

- The system may appear complex and illogical to new and even experienced traders and regrettably they may never even consider trading it.
- As this is basically an investment technique and not a trading technique it goes directly against many of the basic principles of conventional trading (trading without stops) – many traders battle with this paradigm shift. It is a technique that works well over a long period – 1 to 2 years.
- If the incorrect grid sizes, currencies and investment approaches are adopted this system can result in draw downs which appear large but are in fact investments for price movements yet to come.

.

Once you have completed the course and demo traded it for a month you will be perfectly at ease with the its concepts. It is a technique that you learn from using it in practise.

.

The following videos should give you more information on Grid Trading:

.

Module 1: Introduction to Grid Trading

.

GBPJPY 3250 pips in 41 days

.

Please note that this information is supplied to you by Expert4x who neither encourages you to invest this way nor do we discourage you from taking advantage of the strengths of this technique. This information is supplied as educational information. If you are new to Forex we would suggest that you get a good grounding in technical and fundamental trading techniques before using this investment technique. Experienced and competent traders make more money trading conventionally at lower risk levels.

.

Having said that let's learn about the basics of this technique.

.

QUESTIONS OR COMMENTS REGARDING THIS MODULE

.

Please Email us with any comment or questions you may have regarding this module of the Grid Trading Course by clicking here> Questions and comments

